In reality, buses usually come in twos. Only on long bus routes is it common for buses to come in threes. The reason for this phenomenon is that buses often make long stops to allow large groups of passengers to board. When this happens, the next bus on the route usually approaches before the bus preceding it departs. A bus route must be very long for a third bus to join the bunch. Therefore, buses usually come in twos; only on very long routes do they come in threes.

First of all, a small disclaimer. It's actually far, far more likely that the buses will arrive in twos. The usual saying is great; we like to over-emphasise things when complaining and three is a very powerful number in the English language (think Goldilocks and the three Bears, three attempts to guess Rumpelstiltskin's name, the rule of three when using adjectives etc.).
